CAMP & AUXILIARY REGISTRATION

Six signs it’s time to take a fresh look.

If two or more sound familiar, it’s worth a conversation.

01

Families email you to fix their own registrations.

If parents can’t finish a form on their own, the system is creating work instead of saving it.

02

Season data lives in spreadsheets beside the system.

Waitlists, medical notes, staff lists. When the real database is a spreadsheet, nobody trusts the system’s numbers.

03

Leadership numbers get assembled by hand.

If “How did summer do?” takes a week of exports, the reporting is broken, not your team.

04

Two tools disagree about the same family.

Registration says one address, the SIS says another. Families notice, and so does the business office.

05

Only one person knows the configuration.

That’s a risk, not a system. Setup should be documented so the next hire inherits it.

06

A renewal is coming and nobody’s sure it fits.

The best time to assess is before you sign again, not after.

WHERE DOES YOUR SEASON BREAK?

Try the season self-check.

Or set up a time to chat. One conversation, no obligation, and an honest answer about whether we can help. Links in the first comment.
